Canada Sets Blistering Pace in B.E.G. Rowing Event

Beautiful scene shows UBC eights defeating England on Vedder Canal yesterday.

Bring Canada Rowing Medal

Fast-Stroking UBC Crew Upsets England in Eights

BY JOE TAYLOR

VEDDER CANAL (BUP)—Stroking an exhausting 40 to the minute, Canada's big eight from the University of British Columbia swept to an upset three-length victory over England Wednesday to give this country her only gold medal in British Empire Games rowing.

Bucking a stiff current that slowed times by well over one minute on the 2,000-metre Vedder Canal course, the UBC crew moved in front at 500 metres and then refused to let down. They hit 42 strokes a minute in the last 150 metres and were still doing 40 when they skimmed past the finish in 6:59—11½ seconds in front of the Henley regatta finalists.

Australia and New Zealand split the remaining gold medals in the five-event program. Mervyn Wood, veteran Olympic and Diamond Sculls champion, stroked the Aussies to victory in the double sculls, then hopped into a larger boat to help his country to victory over New Zealand in the fours.

EASY WIN

Donald Rowlands of New Zealand sped to an easy five-length victory over Sidney Rand of England in the singles, with Bobby Williams of Canada a distant third. The New Zealand duo of Robert Packer and Reg Douglas came from behind to edge England in the pair oars.

The day's big upset, however, was provided by Canada in the eights, and coach Frank Read said he knew it was going to happen even before the start. "We planned to take the lead at the 1,000-metre mark," he said, "but we did it sooner. That pace was really amazing. We had been doing only 36 in practice."

CREW WORRIED

The British Columbia crew was not so confident, however. "We felt pretty bad at the start," Ken Frummond of Burton, B.C., said. "But at the 1,000-metre mark we felt pretty sure of winning and at the 1,500 it was definite." Others in the crew were stroke Glen Smith of Grand Forks, Mike Harris of Abbotsford, T. Toyne and Doug McDonald of Ganges, L. West of Vancouver, Herman Zlokovic of Prince George, Coxswain Ray Sierpina of Vancouver.

Both Read and singles winner Rowlands said the three-knot current down the canal added at least one minute to times in every event.

Top Track Stars Have Lazy Day

BY IAN GLENDAY
Colonist Staff Reporter

EMPIRE VILLAGE—Track and field competitors generally spent a lazy day at the village as they had an off day from competition.

Although the village is sealed off from the public, autograph seekers still manage to slip through and it's a common sight to watch an athlete sign his name to a piece of paper handed him by a starry-eyed youngster.

Proving a hit with the women are the dark-skinned competitors from Africa and the Fiji Islands. The male contestants on the Fiji team are decked out in light blue blazers, gray skirts and sandals.

The village is a city within a city, probably the only place where you will find athletes from so many countries mingling together in a closely-knit spirit that seems symbolic of the Games.

For instance, Thelma Hopkins of Northern Ireland and Emmanuel Ifeajuna of Nigeria were sitting on the steps of the Northern Ireland hut talking about their high jump victories, which have proved one of the high points so far.

Ifeajuna, a shy, 19-year-old Lagos civil servant, would like to come to the United States to enter a university and continue his high jumping.

Although only five feet, six-and-a-half inches tall, Ifeajuna outjumped his height by more than 14 inches as he set a B.E.G. record with a leap of six feet, eight inches on Saturday.

Miss Hopkins, an 18-year-old Belfast lass who hopes to take up a medical career at Queen's University, will make her next stop the European Games in Switzerland shortly.

She set a Games record Tuesday when she cleared the bar at five feet, six inches and missed a world record when she failed in three tries to clear five feet, eight and a half inches.

Feature of today's track and field program will be the running of the two mile heats. It will be the first mile of England and world time that Dr. Roger Bannister will run together on the same track although they have been drawn in different heats.

Bannister is still suffering from a cold and only time will tell whether it will affect him in any way.

Terry Tobacco, the 18-year-old Cumberland High School student who is raised highly by Victoria track coach Bruce Humber, relaxed on his bed in hut No. 72 in the Canadian team quarters and insisted he didn't feel at all nervous on the eve of his first test in the British Empire Games.

"I'm not nervous now, the lanky grade 12 student said, but I can expect butterflies by tomorrow morning."

Tobacco, who seems to turn in a better time every time he runs the 440 yards will see his first action this afternoon in the third heat of the quarter-mile eliminations.

It will be Tobacco's first start in the major competition and he doesn't know quite what to expect in the way of competition. "I have heard that Kevan Gosper of Australia, rated one of the top prospects, has done it in 47.6 seconds and several others in 47.2."

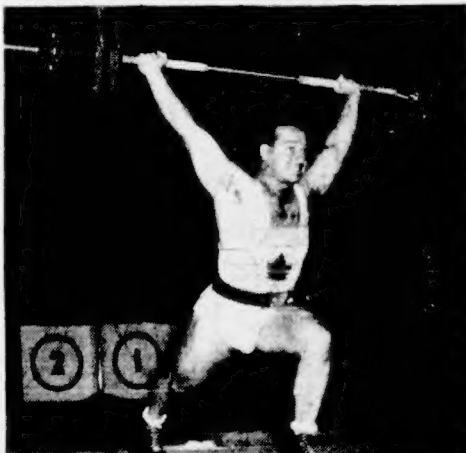

Tobacco's best time in a recognized meet came in the B.E.G. trials when he ripped off a 48.5 quarter in finishing second to Joe Forman of Toronto. However, Tobacco has been unofficially clocked in 47.8 in a practice run.

The Vancouver Island youth has been training twice a day, concentrating on 300-yard sprints for speed and 660-yard runs to build up stamina.

For relaxation, it's been reading and shows—at least one a day. "We saw four in one day," Dave Stafford, his room-mate, interrupted at one point. Stafford, of Langley, B.C., is entered in the broad jump and one of his staunchest supporters is his grandmother, who lives in Victoria.

One of many Empire Games records falls as Thelma Hopkins, 18-year-old high jumper from Northern Ireland, clears the bar at five feet, six inches.

One of Canada's three gold medals in Empire Games weight-lifting went to a nonchalant Gerry Grattion of Montreal, shown above setting new B.E.G. record.

Crusade Gets Setback

Minister Halted By Nudist Group

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—About 20 nudists stopped a crusading evangelist at the gateway of Sunshine Gardens Wednesday and wouldn't let him go any farther unless he obeyed the rules.

To do that he had to take off his clothes. He refused. After considerable scuffling he landed on the ground.

Dr. Braxton B. Sawyer, a radio preacher from Fort Smith, Ark., said he wanted to take pictures to expose "the national threat of nudism."

He said he has been broadcasting since Monday over 27 stations in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Missouri. Sawyer said he is obtaining information with a movie camera and a tape recorder to help pass an anti-nudism bill in those four states.

Equipped with what he called an invitation to attend the annual convention of the American Sunbathing Association, at the Gardens, Sawyer approached the gate.

But he was told by Elmer J. Adams, proprietor, that he still must abide by the rules. Sawyer said his letter from Norval Packwood, the association's executive secretary, permitted him to stretch the rules.

Sawyer began to take pictures from the gateway. One nudist attempted to block the camera. Sawyer lunged at him. The nudist stepped aside and in the melee, Sawyer landed on the ground.

His gleaming black Cadillac convertible was backed right up onto the top of the dike near the royal box so he would not have to walk back across the bridge to the east side of the canal.

CROWDS HELD BACK—RCMP officers had a difficult time holding back crowds who surged from two directions along the dike and down both sides of it to catch a glimpse of the handsome duke as he left for Vancouver.

Earlier the duke, whose fondness for driving earned him a good deal of unexpected publicity and even some criticism during the Royal tour on Vancouver Island three years ago, took the wheel of a hardtop Cadillac on the trip yesterday morning from Vancouver to the RCME camp at Sardis.

He slowed down several times on the way to wave to groups of people stationed all along the way. At one point near Langley he slowed almost to a stop to wave to 100 small school children.

Driving the whole way the duke took no risks although he hit 65 miles an hour on a straight stretch out of Chilliwack.

An unknown driver of a wood truck probably wouldn't believe it if you told him but he held up the Duke of Edinburgh for several minutes on the Trans-Canada Highway. The Royal chauffeur tagged carefully behind the laden truck after he left Fry's Corner and didn't get a chance to pass for two miles.

At Sardis the Duke was greeted by Lieut.-Col. D. W. Cunningham, RCME commander, and later inspected the joint services cadets on the camp parade square.

A private lunch at the camp followed. Despite reports that His Royal Highness does not eat sea food, he had cold B.C. salmon for lunch.

His before dinner cocktails were gin and tonic—two of them.

Canadians Victors As Duke Looks On

Royal Visitor Keen Spectator At Thrilling Rowing Events

BY RAY BAINES

Colonist Staff Reporter

VEDDER CANAL—It was hard to tell which was the greater attraction, the Duke of Edinburgh or the B.E.G. rowing, but 10,000 turned out yesterday to see both.

The duke was a very interested spectator throughout the events. He watched through field glasses at all the events and consulted his program constantly.

He saw Canada's fast-stroking UBC eight beat England's crew by 1½ lengths and clapped with the other onlookers when the Canadians crossed the finish line. He carefully studied the crew of the English eight, man by man, through his field glasses when his weary countrymen slumped exhausted at the end of the race.

CHEERED BY CROWD

His Royal Highness arrived earlier on the east side of the canal, crossed the army's Bailey bridge to the west side and walked along the top of the dike to the royal box amidst cheers from the crowd on both sides.

His arrival was marked by a trumpet fanfare from the RCAP bandmen and a fly past of RCAP Lancasters, Vampires and Mustangs which streaked over at exactly the right moment.

The duke's box was situated on the canal bank opposite the finish line. Below was the float where the victory ceremonies were held when winners were presented with medals.

When he walked along the dike on arrival at Vedder, the 33-year-old consort of Queen Elizabeth looked a little pale but he smiled and waved to the cheering crowds. Once seated in his box, the duke leaned forward as if eager for the races to begin.

PUT ON GLASSES

Said to be sensitive to bright light, the duke put on his dark glasses immediately he settled into the box between B.E.G. chairman Sir Arthur Porritt and Canada's External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson.

The sun never completely broke through the overcast during the afternoon but the waters of the canal gleamed brightly in the half-sunshine.

Showing keen interest in all the events he saw, the duke kept his glasses trained towards the starting point in each event and followed the progress of each race until its climax. Several times he had to stand to see over the heads of those in the royal party when the races were just starting.

He departed from the Vedder Canal before all the events were run off and about half the cheering crowd left immediately after.

His gleaming black Cadillac convertible was backed right up onto the top of the dike near the royal box so he would not have to walk back across the bridge to the east side of the canal.

Russia Urges Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—

Russia, in a surprise move, called Wednesday for a new Big Four foreign ministers meeting to consider Moscow's plan for joining Eastern and Western European countries in a giant security pact.

Senior U.S. officials promptly labeled the Soviet proposal as a last-minute manoeuvre aimed at blocking French approval of the six-country European Army project.

WARMED-OVER OFFER

Russia's new proposal, they said, represents a warmed-over version of previous offers, notably the one of July 24, already rejected as unacceptable by Britain, France and the United States.

Russian ambassadors in Washington, London and Paris handed notes to the Big Three foreign offices, formally proposing the new East-West meeting.

A Soviet spokesman said the note mentioned the possibility of discussing some aspects of the long-deadlocked plans for uniting Eastern and Western zones of Germany.

EXPERTS MEET

The Soviet move came on the eve of a London meeting of British, American and French experts who have been assigned to reply to the Russian proposal of July 24, calling for a conference on a security system which would embrace all Europe.

Moscow's strategy in formally proposing the Big Four conferences was believed to be to encourage the French government to further delay a vote on French membership in the European Defense Community.

Tendermen Considering New Offer

VANCOUVER (CP)—A new offer made by fishing companies Wednesday is being considered by representatives of 600 tendermen who have voted for a strike that would tie up British Columbia's fishing fleet.

The offer was made at a meeting of representatives of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union (Ind.) and the Fisheries Association of B.C. At the same time, it was announced the union officials were discussing holding of a strike vote among shore workers.

The union is demanding a $30-a-month increase. Tendermen have voted 81.6 per cent to strike to back up their demands. The basic wage now is $120 an hour.

Youths Pause To Phone

$17 Stolen from Home Before Eyes of Child

Two young men are sought by city police after they walked into a home yesterday, stealing $17 while a seven-year-old girl looked on.

Police said the two men came to the front door of the home of Mrs. Jewett Dhillon, 580 John Street, while she was next door. They asked Mrs. Dhillon's daughter Paula, 7, if the parents were home.

When she said no, the men walked in and took the money from a purse in a bedroom, making a telephone call before they left.

One of the thieves wore blue jeans and a brown jacket and was taller than the other, who wore grey slacks and a wind-breaker.

Protesting to Government House

Sidney Officials Miffed; Not Invited To Meet Duke

The Sidney village commission feels the village was slighted when the Duke of Edinburgh arrived at the Patricia Bay airport Sunday for his brief visit to this area.

No representative was invited to meet the duke, and the commission has decided to write to Government House, deploring the lack of an invitation.

Harold Fox, commission chairman, said he communicated with Government House before the duke's arrival and was informed invitations were extended only to mayors and Reeves.

Mr. Fox said, "It's not a personal matter ... I'm objecting on behalf of the village."

Fairfield Gardeners Can Prove Friday Their Flowers Better Than Oak Bay's

Is it true that better flowers are grown in Fairfield than in Oak Bay?

The assertion was made yesterday by a Fairfield gardener who phoned offering blooms for the Colonist-sponsored "Share the Flowers" plan.

He had read that Oak Bay gardeners donated a record quantity of flowers Tuesday for distribution to institutions and hospitals in the district.

The ardent gardener claims Fairfield produces better blooms and claims the fact will be obvious when collections are made in the district Friday.

So Fairfield gardeners who wish to help him substantiate his theory, and who have some spare flowers, should phone the Colonist at 3-4111 as early as possible today, to arrange for collections.

Volunteer drivers will call at their homes between 10 a.m. and noon, Friday, and bring the blooms to the Colonist building on Douglas Street, where they will be arranged into bouquets.

Friday's flowers will go to patients in St. Joseph's Hospital and the Veterans' Hospital.

They are two of the nine institutions that benefit from the scheme. The others are Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria Nursing Home, the Aged Men's Home, Rest Haven Hospital, St. Mary's Priory, the Aged Women's Home and the Naval Hospital at Esquimalt.

Gardeners are reminded that donations of any size, large or small, will be appreciated, and will help to swell the number of flowers that will brighten wards and sickrooms.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

HOW much do you think the CPR would charge for a nice little apartment, say aboard the Princess Elizabeth running between here and Vancouver?

I wouldn't want anything elaborate—just three or four rooms, furnished, self-contained, with a guest bathroom, in one of the fashionable sections of the ship, as long as it was above the waterline.

And if it had a picture porthole with a good view, so much the better.

The thought of a life on the ocean wave occurred to me as I shuffled between Vancouver and Victoria. If I got the apartment, send my mail to an address on Georgia Strait.

Friends needn't bother knocking on the front door (that's Victoria). Too formal. Just slip through the tradesmen's entrance (Vancouver). Sorry I can't show you the basement. Too much water down there.

Are there any former residents of Acadia Camp, UBC, in the house? You wouldn't recognize the place. Some huts have been moved, and paint and stucco liberally applied. Each hut is labeled with the name of a country. Acadia Camp is Empire Village, where the athletes live.

One familiar piece of scenery is the face of Clarence P. Armour, the big push of Acadia Camp. We met him at the gate, as he was giving directions to a couple of Boy Scout helpers.

Running the canteen are Hugh and Vickie Radford, former residents of Number Two trailer camp. Hugh will graduate as a medical doctor and will intern next term.

Number Two is the only trailer camp that remains. A couple of large trees have grown up between the trailers. I half-expected to see my own trailer parked there and my old cat Misticris sunning himself on the little patch of grass. But there was a strange trailer on plot No. 11.

The old path from the camp to the university is half-choked with bushes. I picked fat salmonberries near the path—a sure sign that few people pass that way.

New buildings have sprouted all over the campus. We sat in the cafeteria, nursing those Alma Mater blues. There wasn't a face we knew in the whole summer crowd. The only creature that paid us any attention was a large soulful-looking dog. He hung around our table waiting for meat.

Another thing was strange about the university. Someone had let a lot of kids in there. It used to be populated by folk our own age.

But after a while a friend did appear. He was Bob Matchett, otherwise known as the "Duke of Sooke," who is working on a master's thesis in agriculture. He broke our mood of nostalgia just in time to prevent us drowning ourselves in the library pond.

That's enough. The fellow who "knew this place when..." ranks high among the world's great bores.

I have decided on a new career. I'm going to be the man who goes around the pool at the British Empire Games with a long-handled net, scooping out stray bits of floating paper so they won't bother the swimmers. With that job, I'll have to work only once every four years. And if they ask me to work the Olympic Games as well, I'll demand overtime. What do you mean, do the Kelowna Regatta as well? You want me to wear myself out?

Optimist of the Week award goes to the announcer at Empire Pool. When he told 4,000 spectators that the next Empire Games would be in Cardiff in 1958, he added: "I'll see you all there."

Never mind Bannister and Landy. In the days when I walked to school, I set a new record, too. I broke the 40-minute mile—did it in 35 minutes.

Royal Visitors Flying to Canada

LONDON (CP)—The Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra will travel to Canada on a special RCAF plane being used for the Duke of Edinburgh, it was reliably learned in London Wednesday night.

An official announcement giving dates and details of the visit may be made shortly. It is understood arrangements for the tour now are definite.

The special RCAF transport plane carried the duke to Canada last Wednesday.

The duchess and her daughter are going to Canada primarily to open the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto late this month.

PAY HALF COST
A Toronto dispatch said the federal government will pay half the cost of bringing the Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra to Canada.

But just how much this will cost the Dominion treasury remains somewhat in doubt.

First published estimates on the cost of the tour were $45,000 but Hiram McCallum, general manager of the CNE, said Tuesday the figure was "way out of line." He said he understood the earlier figures were "drastically reduced."

The tab for last year's visit of the late Marshal Montgomery to open the big show was $3,000.

HOTEL FLOOR NEEDED
But this year's visit involves, among other things, renting an entire floor of the Royal York.

Schine Back At Army Camp
AUGUST, Ga. (AP)—Pte. G. David Schine returned to Camp Gordon Tuesday and immediately was reassigned to his former military police outfit.

The wealthy army private, central figure in the recent McCarthy-army dispute, has been with his family in New York.

Dog Club To Hold Gymkhana on August 14

BY B. E. MAGGS

The Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Training Club is holding its 4th annual gymkhana on Saturday, August 14, on the Northok House School playing field, starting at 1:45 p.m. sharp with the inter-club competition for the "Haven allowance."

Bonnie Jean, challenge cup, followed by games and tea.

Mr. S.N.L. wants to know how much water should he have in a goldfish bowl.

A. Depends upon the number of fish in the bowl. One gallon to two or three small goldfish is the correct allowance.

Mrs. A. De V. wants to know what is the correct age to have a bitch dog spayed.

A. Any time after four months, not of course when she is pregnant or in heat.

Mrs. N.T. writes "Some time ago you gave a column in which you gave a few don'ts for cat owners. I have lost that particular column, would you mind telling me some of the don'ts?"

A. Glad to Mrs. T.—Here are some important don'ts for cat owners.

Don't use a flea powder unless it is manufactured especially for cats. Some types are injurious to cats.

Don't feed any kind of poultry or fish bones which are likely to splinter.

Don't have a cat at all if you are not really fond of them.

Don't give a cat or kitten to very small children to play with unless there is an adult present to give advice on proper handling.

AVOID COLD FOOD
Don't feed your cat any food direct from the refrigerator. Cold food or milk is liable to cause stomach trouble.

Don't think that the half-starved cat is the best mousetrapping cat. A contented and well-cared-for cat is a much better hunter.

Rats and mice are not the best food for cats, and some cats will not touch their victims after killing them. If you are really interested in cats call the Cats Protection League—become a member—it is worth while.

Miss J.B. wants to know what is the difference between a Bactrian and a Dromedary.

A. The Bactrian has two humps and is a native of Bactria, a country northeast of Persia. The Dromedary has only one hump and is native to Arabia.

Mr. V.L.N. writes a very sarcastic letter re: my comments in a recent column about rodeos.

He says that I am stupid to make such remarks and—I should mind my own business. (Quite a bit more to the letter but not worth comment.)

A. Every man has a right to his opinion and I am certainly not angry with you because you do not agree with me. If it were possible for horses, dogs, cats, cows—or any animal to speak to us in our language, or if we could understand their opinion so strongly. But much of my life has been devoted to trying to speak for God's creatures.

A.N.K. Jr. says he is a new resident in Victoria and would like to know where he can learn to ride a horse.

A. The best place to learn is the Victoria Riding and Hunt Club, 2301 Cedar Hill Road. See Mr. or Mrs. Carley out there. If they can't teach you not at home. His phone number is 7-2000.

Mrs. Midgley has a very friendly spayed female Springer Spaniel for which she would like to find a very good home. Her phone number is 7-1500. A neighbor, Eric Jones, Club, 2301 Cedar Hill Road, has been kind enough to offer to take care of Mrs. Midgley's dog. If they can't teach you not at home. His phone number is 7-2000.

Victoria Host For Big Show

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I don't believe many of our readers realize the extraordinary size and scope of the gladiolus show opening today at the Memorial Arena.

In other years, the regular gladiolus shows staged by the Victoria Gladiolus Society in the Crystal Gardens have been breathtaking enough in their beauty, but this year, Victoria has been selected to play host to the Pacific International Gladiolus Show, and the arena is the only building in town big enough to contain the exhibits.

All top flight growers throughout the United States and Western Canada will be showing their prize blooms, and if you can imagine a building the size of the Memorial Arena packed to the rafters with the finest gladioli on the continent, you'll have some idea of what's in store for you.

GO-EARLY
This is a three-day show—today, tomorrow, and Saturday—and with the very low admission fee charged, I imagine there will be quite a crush during the peak evening hours. For that reason, I always try to get to such shows in the slack periods, such as early afternoon on the first or second day, so I can take my time and look the flowers over carefully without being jostled.

When you go, be sure to take a notebook and pencil with you, so you can jot down the name and rough description of any varieties which appeal especially to you.

You'll find your notes most valuable when the time comes next spring to place your order for bulbs.

Don't be embarrassed over scribbling away in the middle of the show—it's the thing to do at a gladiolus show, and every body else will be taking notes, too. Don't be afraid, either, to ask questions of any of the officials or exhibitors. With all these specialist growers in town, it's the chance of a lifetime to pick their brains.

MAKE IT CLEAR
I hope the show stewards will see to it that the exhibits are all labeled clearly and legibly. There's nothing more infuriating than to run across a new and beautiful gladiolus, only to find that it's name is as undecipherable as a doctor's prescription. There will be a lot of novices attending this big show who don't know Picardy from King David. This is the officials' chance to capture their interest.

If I may make one other small suggestion, I would like very much to see the women of the Victoria Gladiolus Society operate a demonstration booth, showing how gladioli are made from gladiolus florets. The technique is so simple, once you see it done, and the corsage so beautiful, I'll bet a cookie they wouldn't be able to handle the crowds.

With Jim Tang picking the winners in his sports column, I thought we might get something to eat. I suggested, "I drove up from Chicago."

"All right, but let's go around back anyway."

There was a smaller, private parking space on the side of the building. We entered in a carpeted hallway that bisected the club. In the front part were the main dining room and apparently a dance floor, because you could hear the muffled beat of a band.

We went through another door and were in a wide foyer now that led back from the main entrance. At the counter of the hat check room, a cigarette girl stood talking to the check girl. The scanty costume she wore revealed a cute figure. She saw Velma, started to say brightly, "Hello, I thought tonight you were..." Then she looked at me and stopped. Her eyes became cautious.

We reached the dining room. "A table for two, Morris," said the girl.

"I..." The man started to shake his head.

"One of those spares you always keep over there." She motioned ever so slightly with her beautiful head.

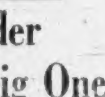

Morris held a chair stiffly and properly, motioning to a waiter as he seated Velma. He placed the menus before us.

"What would you like to drink?" I asked. I didn't want to crowd this thing. The gambling room probably operated most of the night. Maybe I'd find out something if I waited.

"Martinis would be good before steaks," she suggested.

"Two martinis—extra dry," I told the waiter. I saw dapper Morris going across the room but he wasn't moving toward the main entrance. He reached a doorway back near the bandstand and glanced back briefly.

While we were sipping the drinks, the waiter walked over.

Alexander Loses Big One

VANCOUVER (CP)—Field Marshal Earl Alexander has joined the "one-that-got-away" club.

He returned to Vancouver Tuesday from a fishing trip on Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace's yacht, Fifer, with a tale of the one that got away.

He estimated it was 15 pounds.

"It broke water, then took away my leader," said Lord Alexander.

All was not lost, however. He caught three nice cohos, one of them seven pounds.

CHURCHES' COUNCIL

The World Council of Churches was formally constituted August 23, 1948, at Amsterdam by representatives of 147 churches from 44 countries.

BY WILLIAM G. BOGART

I followed the narrower road. Next we were skirting the lake. Here and there a cottage showed through the trees. A party was going full blast in rambling white one that we were just passing. A gal was racing across the lawn with a drink in her hand and screaming like a hyena. A gay young blade on rubbery legs was chasing her.

"Nothing like a restful vacation in the country," I said.

Velma Deering's mouth twisted. "The stinking rich. Money buys anything you want up here."

We passed a stretch of deep woods, then the sign appeared like a white ghost out of the night: "The Oaks." It was long and rambling, the size of a ranch.

Velma said, "Drive around to the rear."

"I thought we might get something to eat," I suggested. "I drove up from Chicago."

"All right, but let's go around back anyway."

There was a smaller, private parking space on the side of the building. We entered in a carpeted hallway that bisected the club. In the front part were the main dining room and apparently a dance floor, because you could hear the muffled beat of a band.

We went through another door and were in a wide foyer now that led back from the main entrance. At the counter of the hat check room, a cigarette girl stood talking to the check girl. The scanty costume she wore revealed a cute figure. She saw Velma, started to say brightly, "Hello, I thought tonight you were..." Then she looked at me and stopped. Her eyes became cautious.

We reached the dining room. "A table for two, Morris," said the girl.

"I..." The man started to shake his head.

"One of those spares you always keep over there." She motioned ever so slightly with her beautiful head.

Morris held a chair stiffly and properly, motioning to a waiter as he seated Velma. He placed the menus before us.

"What would you like to drink?" I asked. I didn't want to crowd this thing. The gambling room probably operated most of the night. Maybe I'd find out something if I waited.

"Martinis would be good before steaks," she suggested.

"Two martinis—extra dry," I told the waiter. I saw dapper Morris going across the room but he wasn't moving toward the main entrance. He reached a doorway back near the bandstand and glanced back briefly.

While we were sipping the drinks, the waiter walked over.

Drive-In Theatres Ordered To Stop Sunday Showings

Only one Vancouver Island drive-in theatre will be affected by an attorney-general's department ruling ordering an immediate stop to Sunday movies in drive-ins.

Louis Braden, president of the New Westminster Lions Club, said that service clubs have been ordered to stop the practice of sponsoring Sunday drive-in movies, which have helped to finance their charities, through silver collections.

Mr. Braden said the order will strike a crippling blow to the drive-in campaign to raise funds for a duplex cottage for elderly persons.

The Cassidy Drive-in is the only drive-in theatre on Vancouver Island that has been operating Sunday shows.

Commission Refuses Pipeline Rehearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The companies had proposed to federal power commission Wednesday in gas from Alberta. The commission said the rehearing on its decision authorizing the Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corporation, Houston, Tex., to construct a $160,000,000 natural gas pipeline system to serve the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

Westcoast Transmission Co., Spokane, Wash., which had filed competing applications, and a number of intervenors had asked a stay of the June 18 order and rehearing. The two were refused.

Wednesday's action opens the way for possible court tests of the decision. Westcoast has said it planned to seek a court review if a commission rehearing were refused.

Aluminum in Production

THE day when prospectuses, plans, blueprints, work schedules and other initial details can be laid aside and production start is a time of accomplishment in any industry. Word of the pouring of the first aluminum ingot in British Columbia at the Kitimat plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada was encouraging news for British Columbia. Here at a site which was once a name on the map as an old-time Indian village remote from all contacts has begun a new industry in the province, to add to other large-scale and permanent output in the metal division. The fact that the house has to be imported into the province and that water-power is the chief contribution of British Columbia to production in this instance does not alter the result.

From times immemorial metals, textile fabrics and pigments, to mention only three of the many starting points in manufacturing, have played outstanding roles in human affairs. Metals have founded whole civilizations, as men learned how to treat the ores and to recover the malleable forms which could be turned into tools, implements and articles of use in daily life. Aluminum is still comparatively new in the annals of metallurgical history, but that it also will influence both the times in which we live and the people who live in them is beyond doubt. Each year has seen an extension of the degree to which the light and easily worked metal has been absorbed into the ordinary and everyday occasions of society.

Inasmuch as the Kitimat development adds yet another string to British Columbia's bow in the base metal division it will be thoroughly welcome. No undertaking of this size stands alone. In the wake of aluminum smelting on the northwest coast may come a growth in coastal shipping, the development of secondary manufactures, employment, influx of settlement and all of the benefits of new work attempted and useful service rendered.

It was a happy circumstance which saw the first British Columbia ingot cast in the presence of His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh. Few men have shown a livelier appreciation of metallurgical and scientific advance, or have done more in a personal sense to encourage that which is stable and enduring in the new skills and arts of the day. Production at Kitimat also is a fresh christening of this province's vast potential waterpowers, an abiding asset which can only contribute when it is put into use. That is the true function of risk capital, but in this instance the risk would seem to be slight and the benefits to British Columbia and its citizens enduring and many.

Breaching the Barriers

PSYCHOLOGICALLY or otherwise, when the first man succeeds others take fresh heart and go on to do likewise. In two widely-heralded feats this past 12 months barriers were breached that had for long been thought insurmountable. First and of more notable nature was the conquest of Everest; then came the Bannister four-minute mile. Although dissimilar each represented the culmination of sustained human effort over the years and set a new goal for successors.

Given the psychological release from seeming inhibition, Landy quickly emulated the Bannister performance. Now comes word that an Italian expedition has planted its flag on top of the second highest mountain in the world, Mount Godwin Austen. It would be wrong to push the sporting parallel too closely yet undoubtedly the success of Hillary and Tensing last year would help to spur the Italian climbers to an achievement that is but slightly less in merit than the climbing of Everest. Mountaineering circles everywhere will hail the Italian feat and give it the genuine credit that is due.

In the realm of running another new record will some day be set for the mile, perhaps even before this week is out at the B.E.G. in Vancouver. In mountaineering lesser ambition must be satisfied, since the next highest unscalped peak to be conquered ranks only third in the world. Yet one of these years an expedition will undertake it and reach the top too. So many running records tumble these days, so many mountains are climbed, that one wonders what will be left for posterity to aim at. For if the day dawns when men cease to serve the inner urge to achieve, as exemplified anew by dauntless endeavor on the windswept slopes of Mount Godwin Austen, then the human race will have reached its anti-climax.

Forty Years Ago

FORTY years ago yesterday men were gathered at Valcartier Camp, near the Cartier River, in Canada's urgent mobilization against the threat of the First World War. They included the militia (the "territorial" forces of the day); ex-regulars from United Kingdom regiments and a cross section of the youth of this land. Naval reserves had already left to join the main battle-fleets of Great Britain; and Canada's own navy, small but eager, was making the best of a handful of ships which were none too seaworthy and much out of line with naval armaments of that day. In a human sense, the challenge of rampant aggression in Europe found Canada willing but unprepared.

Today that is history and buried deep under the complicated sequence of human events, including a larger and more exhausting world conflict since. But the lesson of Valcartier is as valid today as ever it was. It is that this country must never take for granted either the defense of Canada or her contribution to what might be required in the discharge of her growing obligations in the world. Seen against this background, the call of the Canadian Legion for reconstitution of effective military training in Canada and the adoption, if need be, of national selective service is a viewpoint that cannot lightly be brushed aside. These men, and one generation later their sons, saw action at first hand. They knew what preparation entails.

Peace exists in the world today chiefly because war would be rebuffed instantly. Preparedness in fact has become the first line of defense for all free peoples. But even were the times very different and there was no threat of aggression or armed conflict, national selective service has merits of its own. In lands where it has been adopted, and that is to say in most countries, it has stopped a generation of youth from going to seed; given young men a physique, a discipline and a confident, mature outlook that has added immeasurably to their own chances of success in life. Nor are veterans alone in that belief.

Interpreting the News

Collective Defense Planning

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Associated Press News Analyst

THE United States launched a movement in the United Nations Wednesday to keep future collective defense against aggression from looking so much like a strictly American project.

There are also practical aspects to the proposals that all UN members should agree to give some sort of support in event of any new Korean, and that the UN should be prepared to support regional organizations like the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the proposed Southeast Asian Defense Organization. In case they are required to take defensive action.

The United States felt too few participated in Korea. Some countries just wouldn't contribute. Others had men, but no training facilities, or boats, or lacked something else vital.

Participants were required to pay for U.S. arms and facilities in dollars. More countries, in which the UN operates, could have paid the UN in local currency and thereby have been able to act, but could not pay in dollars. As to support of the regional defense organizations, it would only be the other side of the coin by which, under the charter, the UN can call on such organizations when it deems action necessary.

At first glance, considering that the principle would have required the Red bloc to help finance the UN action in Korea, the proposals seem highly controversial.

The Red bloc will, of course, oppose them. Some of the smaller nations, and the neutralists like India, might be expected to do likewise if they were asked to make formal commitments.

But actually, there will be nothing binding if the General Assembly does adopt the idea. The present proposals merely represent a statement of principle.

The original idea was the United Nations, in order to keep the peace, should have an army of its own to which all members would contribute according to their capabilities, and that all individual nations would be relatively disarmed.

But the big powers never have been able to make a pebble for the UN to keep. A UN army now would either have to take a very large and highly disruptive contribution of forces from the Red bloc or else organize without them into a force which would have every aspect of being directed against them.

Thinking Aloud Gerald Waring

of shoes—and ships—and sailing was—of cabbages and kings
By TOM TAYLOR

I DON'T know that John Barrymore was exactly the best of mentors but anyway he averred once that the best way to fight a woman was with one's hat.

Grab it and run, he said, having had lots of practice himself. That advice wouldn't be much good now, as the British Empire Games demonstrate very clearly. The ladies have winged feet themselves and you'd be apt to lose your hat.

So I fancy think a colleague of mine in the downstairs office. He came up to me with a creased brow, a slip of paper in his hand.

"Would you look at this now," says he, I looked. Some fair damsel had swum 110 yards in about 65 seconds. In my ignorance I merely said, "So what?"

"So what?" — very astonished-like — "Why, that's the time I used to return myself." I forbore reminding him that after all these were the Empire Games and not some little swimming gala in a side street. In any case I wasn't too sure as to his reaction; whether he was worried about the gal's speed or overcome with admiration.

As he elaborated, however, I became aware of the deep significance of his interest. The girls are catching up; there's no doubt about that.

A month ago an English girl tore the five-minute-mile to shreds just about the time Bannister was breaking the four-minute-mile. Granted this is a quarter slower, but other things considering it's a sophisticated pace all right.

And come over to Vancouver, said my friend. I followed him.

Here's the girl he's talking about. She equals his old time of 63 seconds — done by him at the peak of his human pulchritude — and the best the male can do at the BEG for 110 yards is 56 seconds.

That's merely one-sixth faster. And hold on, says he, as I began to get slightly alarmed myself. Here's another female gazelle. What does she do? Well, she rips off 100 track yards in 10.7 seconds; her male contemporary manages only to run the same distance in 9.6 seconds.

That's less than one-ninth faster. "Don't you think that's wonderful?" asks my colleague, although truth to tell he sounded more like John Barrymore than himself.

It is wonderful, of course, even if it's a bit serious too. You've got to hand it to the ladies, they're getting to their BEG goals too-sweet. By comparison, taking into account the natural odds against her, milady is making a slowpoke of Mr. He.

I could see my friend was torn between a natural instinct to be fair and the suspicion that somehow as a male, he was being surpassed. A sort of feeling that really you know the girls should suit their place and stay a good bit behind.

What's the modern age coming to, after all? I couldn't answer that one, being rather preoccupied myself at this revelation of feminine speed. For what will be next on the program?

Doubtless the same reaction caused a movie-reel cameraman—he'd be a male of course—to pass up the photographic glamour girl of the games when filming shot-put artists at work. (This I learn from our own social columns). It wouldn't be stern duty that made him ignore her, that's for sure. No sir, it would be the creeping paralysis that's overcoming the male.

He'd be afraid not of his hat but his camera, maybe. For certain he never clocked 10.7 for 100 yards, male muscles and all.

"Well, what else?" I asked my colleague from downstairs, thinking we might as well plumb the worst and get it over with.

"What else?" repeated he, "Isn't that enough?" And he picked-up his faithful slip of paper and strode dolefully out of the room.

Reports from Ottawa

A CONVOY of ships en route to the Arctic with supplies for weather stations there deserve particular notice. For the first time this annual mission is an all-Canadian undertaking.

The operation has been named "Nors I", an abbreviation for "northern re-supply." It's also being called Operation Beerbottle, but quite unofficially, of course.

Anyone whose cellar or shed is cluttered with empty bottles worth a nickel each will see the connection. For years American ships have been taking drums of fuel oil to the joint Canadian-American weather stations, but they've never bothered to return the empties.

Several thousand steel drums have thus accumulated at various Arctic outposts, and they're worth $12 each. Last year the thrifty Department of Transport set up facilities at Resolute Bay for cleaning the drums, so they could be shipped back to the oil companies for the sake of the refunds. So when the supply ships return from the Arctic next month, they'll carry payloads of oil drums.

Canada and the U.S. jointly operate five weather reporting stations in the Arctic islands. The stations at Resolute Bay, Eureka Sound and Alert are resupplied by sea during the short summer navigation season. The remote western Arctic posts at Mould Bay and Isachsen Peninsula cannot be reached by sea, so the RCAF airlifts supplies and personnel there in April.

Hitherto U.S. Coast Guard ice-breakers and U.S. Navy cargo vessels have played a big part in the annual resupply. Now this country is taking over the whole job with the exception of Alert. That station, on the northern tip of Ellesmere Island, will be resupplied by U.S. ships if they can get through the

A well-trained child can come into a strange room filled with interesting objects of all descriptions, bric-a-brac, fascinating small ornaments, books, barometers, ship models, type writers, open China dogs, German bayonets and Eskimo ivory carvings, and touch not a single thing. Walking about with hands under perfect control, this child (which in these days is almost purely imaginary), looks with the liveliest interest at everything in the room; and in due time is invited to take hold and examine whatever most interests it.

The badly trained brat enters any room, living room, bedroom, kitchen or bath, and must instantly grab hold of something. Such a child in a room like the one described in the previous paragraph is a menace and a horror. It is sheer luck if nothing is smashed inside of a minute.

A child psychologist tells me that this instinct in the modern child is part of the acquisitive spirit of the age. We live in an era of unquenchable curiosity. It has most if not all adults in its grip, and parents see nothing wrong with a child who exhibits a natural curiosity, as natural as the curiosity of a bear cub or a young racoon.

"Indeed," says the psychologist, "we owe the present lively and progressive age in which we live to that spirit of enquiry and that desire to possess which now afflicts us all. What possibly happened was that about fifty years ago, or thereabouts, children began to be less well disciplined than formerly. They no longer had to be seen and not heard. No more did they have to stand around with their hands behind their backs, or else get smacked. So a generation of brats grew up, untrained, undisciplined, free to grab hold of everything they saw and examine it if at all possible. And so damned the Twentieth Century, with all its enquiry and its acquisitiveness. Nobody is to be denied. Everybody has a right."

"Well, look," I protested, "how about my typewriter?"

"Keep it covered."

"And how about my Eskimo ivory carving?"

"Put it up high, out of reach," suggested the child psychologist. "That is, if you want to be old-fashioned, and inhibit some poor child's growth into a full-grown, curious, acquisitive adult in this wonderful age."

Heavies at Balacava

(From The Weekly Scotsman)

WHAT an extraordinary nation we are! To the man in the street, Balacava, if it means anything at all, means "The Charge of the Light Brigade," generally because he, as a child, was made to learn some verses by Tennyson glorifying this complete shambles into a wonderful cavalry charge.

The Heavy Brigade, who put up a really good show following up the defeat of the Russian cavalry by "The Thin Red Line" of the 93rd Sutherland Highlanders, not 93rd Argylls, as Mrs. Woodham Smith calls them in her book, "The Reason Why" are quite forgotten.

I doubt if many people who can glibly recite "In the Valley of Death" and all that, have the slightest clue as to the Heavy Brigade or "The Thin Red Line." In Scotland, one still sees Robert Gibb's famous picture in many houses, but south of the border there is a great mass of ignorance.

On the anniversary there will be a dinner at Deane Park attended by Lucan and Raglan and the commanding officers and second-in-command of the regiments who were sacrificed. The old 93rd — alas, no longer even represented by the 2nd Battalion Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders — will be remembered by the regiment, with special celebrations at Stirling, the home of the regiment, and they have something to celebrate.

One hopes that the regiments of the Heavy Brigade, now mechanized with even heavier mounts, and the 4th and 5th Dragoon Guards, the Royal Dragoons, the Inniskillings and, especially, our own Royal Scots Greys, will drink a toast that night, October 25, to their ancestors who charged so successfully at Balacava. Briefly, the story is that the Turks had been given the area of Balacava to defend, and had erected stone redoubts on the hills overlooking the valley. The defense of Balacava itself had been entrusted to Sir Colin Campbell.

The Russians attacked with cavalry and drove the Turks from their redoubts. Sir Colin drew up the 93rd in line and with great faith in the new weapon, the Enfield muzzle-loading rifle, with which his troops were armed, awaited the Russian cavalry.

A volley at 600 yards emptied many saddles, but didn't stop the advance; another at 500 yards showed when the smoke had cleared away, the Russians were retiring.

Then came the turn of the "Heavies" under General Scarlett, and with the Greys and Inniskillings, supported by the Royals, the old "Union Brigade" of Waterloo, in the lead, and the 4th and 5th Dragoon Guards on the flanks, they sent the Russians flying back to their lines, and Balacava was saved.

Sir Colin Campbell might well get a little excited as he rode up to the Greys, hat in hand and exclaimed, "Greys, gallant Greys—I am past 61 years; if I were young again, I should be proud to be in your ranks, you are worthy of your forefathers."

It was after this that the charge of the Light Brigade took place and cast a shadow over what had so far been a victorious engagement.

Soundless Piano

(From Saturday Night, Toronto)

A REASSURING bit of news came the other day from Chicago, where some great man, who one day may be ranked with Lincoln as a liberator of slaves, has produced a piano with a silencer on it.

The piano, which runs on electricity, has a switch that shuts off the sound no matter how hard the keys are pounded, and a set of earphones to enable the player to listen to his own noise if he so desires.

At worst, pianos are only minor irritants in the world but the Chicago invention suggests other glittering developments: Silent jukeboxes, ear-phones for truckers who find solace during the lonely night hours in burping their motors, politicians who can be seen but not heard, and a host of other delightful possibilities.

Letters to the Editor

Praises Oak Bay

The dangerous condition of the road in front of our home has been remedied by the speedy action of Oak Bay Council. Inside three days of our complaining, municipal employees were at work widening the road.

Some time ago the Reeve of Oak Bay gave as one of his cogent reasons against amalgamation with the city the fact that municipal ratepayers and the council try to work in harmony with each other, that it is possible, with such a spirit exists in this community, to get important things done, not just everlastingly talking about them.

As the former owner of 617 Foul Bay Road (Mt. Joy), now completely lost to us, I can only regret that this property was not also in Oak Bay, where it would have had a chance to survive and serve the best interests of the community.

As the former Secretary of Greater Victoria Committee for Amalgamation, I agree with the Reeve's statement that there is a spirit of co-operation and goodwill in this municipality, which makes it one of the most desirable districts for residence in this province.

B.E.G. Six-Mile Race

Three Englishmen took the top honors in the six-mile race at the Empire Games. In every other race the names of the winners were announced.

As is usual in Canada, the English had to be mentioned, and their names not mentioned. A real sportsman, whatever his nationality would agree that this treatment, meted out only to Englishmen, is mean, unworthy and despicable.

COLIN BRIGHT,

The Rodeo

I feel sure I am only one of very many who wish to uphold Mrs. Heywood in her appeal to the Kinsmen Club. If they have any compassion, to call off their plans for bringing a rodeo to Victoria. What meets the eye in these spectacles is had enough in violence and brutality, but that which does not is worse. What horse, for instance would not be "wild" if afforded the treatment these animals get; the frenzy of mind and agony of body they are subjected to.

One feels sure that no citizen knowing all the facts would tolerate such practices either in Victoria or any other city.

SPCA Watching

The impression has been given in the press recently by certain individuals, who have no connection with the SPCA and are therefore not in a position to know of its activities, that the SPCA is doing nothing in connection with the forthcoming rodeo.

This is not the case. The SPCA has had the matter well in hand for the past five weeks, in an unspectacular but commonsense manner.

The Ancient Gael

In early language the letter "G" was missing, "C" was used in its stead, and with the "H" sound, was the mainstay of all guttural languages. The sound had many inflections.

So, in the Gaelic language, was never used. Primarily, this sound would have been CH, which has been Romanized out of existence by the English "Guardians of Language." The "T" of Scot is the "TH," or light of Gaelic.

So originally a "Scot" was a Gael who lived beside the Chie or religious leader of the house, TH. He was a follower of An Chi Tigh, but as CH was outlawed by Romanization, the English form, "Scot" took its place.

These sounds CHTH gave us the French Cite and the English "city," places where religious men congregated in open dwellings, which like Shechem of Israel, were free from attack.

Nowadays in these cities the religious leader has a CA/TEDRAL built for him. That is how a "City" is classified.

The present Gaelic "Scot" is Sgot, who lives in a "sgotbaile," or congregation of homes of agricultural people, who till the surrounding land.

If Mr. Taylor is ashamed of a probable blood relationship with the Scythians, he can be comforted by going back a few thousand years to the days of Zoroaster, and the city of Balch or Balchi, the Mother of all cities, where a language akin to modern Gaelic was once spoken.

French Star Granted Visa

PARIS (AP)—French music hall and film star Maurice Chevalier was granted permission Wednesday to enter the United States.

The U.S. embassy here would give no reason why Chevalier had been granted a visa after being turned down previously.

Chevalier let it be known some time ago he would like to return to the U.S. if he could get in without difficulty.

Explains Stand

I would be pleased if you would grant me space to explain my stand in connection with the proposal of the Victoria Kinsmen to sponsor a rodeo here at the end of September.

At the outset it should be understood that when I oppose the rodeo I am speaking from long experience of humane work for animals and through the years have gained first-hand knowledge of this subject.

In 1913, when passing sentence to a horse at Vancouver, Magistrate W. W. B. McInnes said, "I have to say the very basis of that performance is cruelty because the horse has to be in a condition of pain to give that performance." This statement by Magistrate McInnes could well apply to every phase of these shows. The animals are roughly handled, abused and continually goaded to terror to provide the so-called entertainment. No part of these performances is necessary and very few of the stunts performed have any place in the modern cattle range. Actually, the rodeo and the bull fight are in the same class as degrading examples of cruelty to animals with one strange exception. Most bulls are subjected to torture only once, while the unfortunate animals in a rodeo are manhandled and abused until they are unfit for any useful purpose.

Mr. Beggeron and his associates with advantage might study the record of rodeos in these parts. There has been only one rodeo in Vancouver since 1949 when the cruelty was successfully exposed in court, and it is believed that the subsequent show was not a financial success. One was held in Duncan last year and I have been informed that the officials of the organization which sponsored it were not too happy about about it.

Why take the risk? This organization has done wonderful work for the community and is held in high esteem accordingly. Why associate it with a spectacle which will not meet with wholehearted public support? There must surely be more palatable methods of raising funds for their charities.

Eisenhower Says Marshall Loyal Patriot

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Wednesday extolled Gen. George C. Marshall as a selfless, brilliant and dedicated patriot who shouldn't have to reap the "sorry reward" of attacks on his loyalty and character.

Eisenhower, almost emotional by his own description, was replying to the charge originated by former secretary of war Harry Woodring and circulated by Sen. Joseph McCarthy that Marshall would "sell out his own grandmother for personal advantage."

"I would like to say," Eisenhower told his press conference, "... that he to me, has typified all that we call—or that we look for—in what we call an American patriot."

"I think it is a sorry reward, at the end of at least 50 years of service to this country, to say that he is not a 'loyal, fine

Strike action by 160 Vancouver glassworkers will begin Tuesday to back a demand for a 20-cent-an-hour wage hike, the union's Mainland business agent, Herb Macauley, said yesterday.

About 20 Victoria glassworkers went on strike July 26 in two companies for the same wage demand. The unions in each city were in joint negotiations with employers and rejected a unanimous conciliation board recommendation for a five cents an hour wage boost.

SPCA Plans To Protect Rodeo Stock

Victoria Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will seek to ensure that no harm befalls animals in a rodeo planned for the fall by the Victoria Kinsmen Club.

President Robert J. Dunsmuir said yesterday his group felt nothing could be done to stop the show although it is opposed to the rodeo in principle.

Local animal-lover Mrs. Florence Barr repeated her intention to continue working to prevent the show, and may apply for an injunction to stop it being held.

LAW CLAIMED
She claims there is a law prohibiting rodeos although Mr. Dunsmuir states he is not aware of any such legislation in B.C.

The society head will meet with rodeo officials, and hopes to come to an agreement with them about the running of the show, and prevention of harm or injury to animals.

RAF SIDELINE
Small complete farms along side runways of RAF stations in Great Britain are operated by the air force.

Woodring's letter said that on Marshall's 1945 mission to patch up a peace in China, Marshall acted under orders from the state department and President Truman even though he was military strategist enough "to know that he was selling out to the Reds."

Eisenhower refused to pass judgment on the moves by Sen. Ralph Flanders to censure McCarthy.

The resolution said the association "deplores any suggestion of coalition or deal-making with any political party."

NANAIMO—Concern about use of city water on at least one of the work projects in Nanaimo has proved to be unfounded.

Water Commissioner C. F. Newcombe asked city council a week ago to stop the use of city water on the Millstream Bridge construction job and the highway at Chase River.

General Construction Co., which has announced the bridge work complete, say water for packing down the fill and flushing sand from under sidewalks was pumped from the stream, and that only a small amount of city water was used for mixing concrete.

Opening of the $225,000 bridge has been set for August 11.

City council is sponsoring a ceremony for the opening of the span which will form the start of a new highway stretch north from Nanaimo.

Works Minister P. A. Gallagher is expected to take part in the ceremony, expecting to come by plane from his Kamloops home.

Airline Waits for Certificate

DUNCAN—Air service between Duncan and Vancouver is set to start as soon as Pacific Western Airlines receives the necessary operating certificate from the department of transport at Ottawa.

Ken McMurray, PWA sales supervisor, who visited Duncan Wednesday, said first flights would stop at Duncan only, as arrangements for extension of the flight to the Lake Cowichan area are not complete.

The new service will offer round-trip flights morning and evening. Times and fares will be announced when the operating certificate is received.

NANAIMO—Seven-year-old Richard Nell of Head Road, Esquimalt, was taken to Nanaimo Hospital Wednesday morning after being struck by a car on Nicol Street.

He has a fractured arm and multiple bruises, but his condition is not serious.

It is thought he was struck when he chased his dog across the street into the path of an oncoming car. The boy has been visiting his aunt in Nanaimo.

LADYSMITH—More than 150 delegates and friends attended a solemn high mass at St. Mary's Church Sunday, marking the opening of the 16th annual diocesan convention of the Catholic Youth Organization.

Monsignor Baker celebrated the mass, assisted by Rev. C. T. Albury as deacon and Rev. Ray Cunningham as sub-deacon. A sermon on the aims of the CYO was preached by Rev. John Yves, RCN chaplain from Esquimalt.

Combined choirs of the various chapters were accompanied by organist Geraldine Edwards.

The annual meeting concluded with election of Tom

Scouts Back from Camp

PORT ALBERNI—Beyond roads and communication for seven days, 22 Boy Scouts and their leaders of the 2nd Arrowsmith Troop, Alberni, returned home from summer camp this week with stories of experiences at historic Pachena Bay.

The site was chosen for its fine beach and the points of interest within a day's hike. It is south of Bamfield on the island's west coast.

The troop's cutter Sharkey played an important part in the week's holiday. Scouts Allan McLeod and Clayton Ansley, with their leader, left July 20, as an advance party in the Sharkey, loaded with food and patrol equipment. They made the trip around Cape Beale into the open Pacific escorted by Hank Wiseman of Bamfield, in a ground swell which sent the Sharkey rolling and dipping in the salt spray.

Other members of the party traveled via My Utchuck to Bamfield and hiked seven miles to the bay, where they set up camp.

Next day was fishing day. First catches were made at low tide at the mouth of the Pachena River where the Scouts waded in and captured eight sole with their hands. After lunch they hiked to Black Lake where the fish were numerous but too small for eating.

Thursday the Scouts visited Pachena Lighthouse, making a hike of about 12 miles return.

The boys climbed to the Beacon Room, an impressive structure of brass and glass which cost $100,000 in 1907, when the lighthouse was built. It is the only one of its kind left intact on the coast and its light is visible for 20 miles.

The Scouts were warmly welcomed by residents of the light station. Scouts made friends with Peter Healey, son of one of the wireless operators at the station, who hiked back to Pachena Bay with them for a two-day visit.

Friday the troop combed Koya Beach, wading and climbing high rocky bluffs.

The rest of the days were spent in camp playing games, swimming and surf riding, practicing scoutcraft and past-times.

Standard of camping was high with only three points between the top Owl Patrol and the runner-up Buffalo Patrol during the week's competition.

Work on Island Film Delayed Two Weeks

Shooting of the full-length Technicolor movie "Timberjack" on Vancouver Island has been delayed about two weeks.

E. G. Rowebottom, deputy minister of trade and industry, has been notified by Republic Pictures that the main crew for the film will not arrive in Victoria until September 1.

Shooting was to begin in the middle of this month. Mr. Rowebottom said Republic is "a little behind schedule completing a picture in Hollywood."

Leading studio officials decided on the delay because they wanted to be in the area during the three weeks of film work.

They include Joseph Kane, the director; Jack Maria, head Republic photographer; John Bourke, location manager; and Kenneth Holmes, unit manager.

CAST COMPLETE—Cast of the film has been completed, except for extras, with the lead roles to be filled by Charlton Heston, Vera Ralston and Broderick Crawford.

Sentence Three Years

DUNCAN—Vernon Lloyd Thompson of Lake Cowichan was sentenced by Judge L. A. Hanna in county court to three years in the penitentiary for a morals offense involving a 16-year-old girl.

Thompson's trial took place July 12. Judge Hanna postponed the passing of sentence to Wednesday pending receipt of a psychiatrist's report.

David R. Williams, acting for the crown, argued for a longer sentence than was imposed, telling the court that from the psychiatrist's report there was no excuse for the crime, the commission of which had extended over a period of two years.

R. C. Weir, Nanaimo, defense counsel asked Judge Hanna to consider when deciding on the penalty that the main emphasis should be placed on reformation of the accused.

Judge Hanna told Thompson he was charged with a crime that was viewed with considerable seriousness by the courts, some sentences which it considered were not severe enough.

The judge said there was no excuse for the crime. "You must have realized the act was against society and against your kind," he said. "You are a young man now, and after you have served your sentence you will have a chance to re-establish yourself under the circumstances, and after serious consideration I sentence you to three years."

Travel in Open Codfish Dory

Seattle Family West Coast Sightseers

KYUQUOT—A sight-seeing Seattle family of four in an open 19-foot codfish dory is creating a sensation along Vancouver Island's rocky West Coast.

Neil and Betty Carey, their two sons and the family pet dog arrived here en route to Alaska. They unloaded a tent and camping equipment for a night's stay.

The procedure has been the same since the Careys left the Messenger III, a Shanty men's Association missionary boat.

Puget Sound boatmen warned her this coast was a "terrible place for small boats."

The advice had only the effect of glamorizing the West Coast and increasing the family determination to make the trip.

Mrs. Carey said.

Toronto Youth Eyes World Junior Chess Crown
After Bringing First U.S. Championship to Canada

BY HENRY BAKER
TORONTO (CP)—A tall, young fellow with a thatch of curly red hair has just brought to Canada a title never before held by a Canadian—the United States Junior chess championship.
He's 18-year-old Ross Siemms who has been playing the game since he was nine. The chessman captured his imagination and interest when as a boy he began moving them across the board for his sick father.
The Toronto-born player is Canada's unofficial junior champion—there is no official title—and on one occasion defeated Canada's top senior player. Now he's got his eye on the world junior title.
MANY TRIES
His triumph in the U.S. junior championship at Long Beach, Calif., last month culminated a long series of tries. At 14 he just missed becoming one of the youngest players ever to win the U.S. title. He's played in the tournament every year since 1947 except last year when he competed for the world title at Copenhagen.
At Copenhagen he was 14th in a field of 20 of the world's best young players.
"I think I'll do a lot better," he arrived back home. He hopes through experience gained in recent tournaments to place among the top three next year.
The affable young man with steady blue eyes and a relaxed manner attributes his success to the experience gained by playing in tournaments at an early age.
KEEN MIND NEEDED
"You need an analytical mind, the power of concentration and plenty of experience to be a top player," he said.
He thinks Canada is not a strong chess country because her players lack experience.
In matches with Canada's best Ross has acquitted himself well. In 1952 he defeated Frank Anderson, Canadian champion. In the Toronto championships he earned a draw with Canada's other champion Abe Yanofsky, during the Canadian championships in 1953.
In the United States he twice captured the Dittman trophy, symbolic of the U.S. championship for 16-year-olds and under.

Pre-Season Trap Shoot
Scheduled by Game Club

Sportsmen waiting anxiously for the opening of the 1954 bird-hunting season next month will be able to get in a bit of shot-gun practice and also compete for prizes Sunday when the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association stages a pre-season turkey shoot at its club grounds at Goldstream.

Actually the event will not be a turkey shoot in the strictest sense of the word since winning contestants will receive scripts which may be redeemed at Victoria stores for turkeys, hams or sporting goods.

Shooting will get under way at 10 a.m. and continue through out the day. Contestants will be matched in classification corresponding to their ability thus giving all entrants an opportunity to grab off one or more of the prizes. Competitions over 10 targets at 16 yards, are open to all sportsmen.

One of the highlights of the day will come at 3 p.m. when Ray Vye of Nitinat will be pre-hunting season next month will be able to get in a bit of shot-gun practice and also compete for prizes Sunday when the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association stages a pre-season turkey shoot at its club grounds at Goldstream.

OKANAGAN FRUIT NEWS

APRICOTS—Export approximately 60% of crop. Harvest in volume about August 15 to 1954.

PEACHES—Rochester and other early varieties will be available in 1954 in increasing quantities starting about August 15. These will be followed by our Three Vees for early season and later Elberta and J. H. Hales.

RASPBERRIES—Peak of the crop. Preserve now. Do not expect any lower price.

CHERRIES—B.C. crop reaching the peak. Some export about 40% of last year's yield. Prices are about as low as expected. If you intend to do any home canning, you would be well advised to purchase your requirements now.

APPLES—B.C. Cooking Apples are now available. Transplants will be in full supply starting about September 1, followed by Duchesne, Concorde, both excellent for apple pies and apple sauce.

PRUNES—A good heavy crop of Italian Prunes is in prospect, but more about that later. In the meantime we are going to ask you to "WAIT FOR B.C. PRUNES".

Don't buy Furs on Price alone

Give a Thought

To the "Hidden" Values!

So you're fur coat shopping? Well, lucky you. Whether it's a coat, a jacket or a stole, it's a pretty exciting business! And a fur is something you should really ENJOY shopping for!

As you try on and admire different furs, you'll agree that this purchase requires careful consideration! You find two coats, the same fur, the same design, the same cut! In fact, they may appear absolutely the SAME—but one coat costs a number of dollars more than the other! WHY? What is it about the one that makes it worth so much more than the other?

The factor determining the PRICE in furs is the important—but intangible one—QUALITY. It's the QUALITY which makes a coat look better, wear better, feel better on you! It's the QUALITY which influences the PRICE, and it's the QUALITY which gives you best satisfaction.

PERSIAN LAMB

You owe yourself a change—
try the whole-egg mayonnaise!

Do you ever get a little bored with salads that taste the same, year in, year out?

You can change that! You can know with a different dressing. Or, instead, we mean "Switch to Best Foods Mayonnaise." This rich, smooth, creamy dressing is made with whole eggs, fresh, broken. Whole eggs for better flavor and smoother texture.

You'll find this dressing is a real strong and mustard dressing. It's a real dressing. It's real! The way a mayonnaise should be. Best Foods doesn't overseason.

your other salad ingredients.

Another reason you like Best Foods Mayonnaise? Another reason you like it is a stand-by. You can't live without it. It's a must-have in your kitchen. It's a must-have in your kitchen. It's a must-have in your kitchen.

Give yourself a change. Try Best Foods. Then you'll know why so many women are glad to pay a little more and get a whole lot more with the whole egg mayonnaise!

Husbands Need Discipline, Skill To 'Survive' Wife's Vacation

WASHINGTON (NANA) — maze to the feed bin. But then up in the super-market pushing a cart overflowing with the better cuts of beefsteak and two dozen cartons of frozen French fries. In his car is a case of beer.

You can identify the same type on his final days of solitude, too. He is on the end stool at the drugstore, ordering tea and toast and a cure for acid stomach.

Canned austerity. Another type leans on the food process-industry to see him through until he gets back on regular rations. His car is laden cases, however, these practical with goods from the "prepared dishes" section—baked beans, corned beef hash, beef stew.

The inner man. The adherent of this school regards his wife's absence mainly as an opportunity to take over the kitchen and gorge on manly fare. You can spot the type easily. The first day his wife is away, he shows his wife's vacation as a double-edged deal, opportunity and responsibility in equal portions. That is the core of the problem. You must strive for a modicum of pleasure plus credit for good behavior, an artful blend of duty and indulgence. Excess, on either side, as the cases above, spells ruin.

Unfortunately, no outsider can prescribe the proper mixture for you. Too much depends on what your wife expects of you, a subject on which you are the world's second best.

Announce a full schedule of work projects before your wife leaves. You can pick jobs that can be quietly turned over to the hired labor.

Keep your liberty quiet. An out-of-town wife is nearly as hard to keep secret as sudden wealth. But try to keep mum to avoid intervention by misguided friends.

Never come home at nine. That invites gossip about your irregular habits. Come home at six or stay away until midnight, when all observers are safely in bed.

UP WITH OWLS
The following night he has no trouble popping off at eight o'clock. And he's hopelessly wide-awake at three o'clock. From then on, it's early to bed and up with the owls. Night is day until his wife gets home.

Out with the boys. The fourth type has no good intentions whatever. He schemes to go out with the boys and discover that the boys have wives. And their wives have not gone to visit mother for a week or two.

Ever notice lonely-men wandering downtown streets at dusk, pausing to study movie-house posters, then shuffling aimlessly along? No human derelicts, they are the wifeless husbands who had plotted a fortnight of riot.

Pot (or bad) luck. Finally, there is the type who welcomes his liberation too loudly. The word gets around. First thing he knows, he's booked solid with dinner invitations from solicitous neighbor wives who have not gone to visit their mothers.

ROUTINE MEALS
So he spends his furlough tucking away routine meals and helping put other people's children to bed. He must hang around and be sociable with his benefactors. Being out until midnight every night, he learns, is much harder than merely being up until midnight.

Where did those short-term bachelors go wrong? The answer is plain. None recognized.

Keep a tidy house. Select one if you can without actually knife, fork, spoon, plate and lying. Make some improvements. Don't soil the dish towels. There are many things a Let your dishes air-dry. Home thoughtful husband can do to est round of pleasure plus credit for good behavior, an artful hygienic, and you owe it to Snag more space in the medi- your family to look after your- cine chest for shaving gear, for example, or hide all those little ash trays.

Air your bed thoroughly. This, too, is hygienic. If your wife will be gone two weeks, air your bed for two weeks, and well. You can't be more hygienic than Be brave. The hours really are no longer than before. Retain the cleaning woman. Normality and your wife will She won't have much to do, return on schedule. If she sus-but maybe you can join her, peek your into something special like away, she may never take an- washing the windows. Take other vacation. Surely you- credit for doing this yourself, wouldn't do that to her?

"THE DAY AFTER THE SCHOOL PARTY I DIDN'T FEEL SO GOOD! My stomach was upset. Mom said, 'We'll see about that.' She mixed sparkling Andrews—I like its fizzy, bubbling taste and soon felt better and ready to go out to play again."

LIKE millions of Mothers the world over, Peter's Mother keeps Andrews as the family standby against constipation and acid stomach. She knows that FIRST, Andrews refreshes the mouth and tongue with its lively sparkle and pleasant taste. NEXT it sweetens sour stomach and relieves acid indigestion. # Drowning at Beaver Lake Accidental, Jury Decides Coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the drowning of 26-year-old Miss Pauline Rowbotham of 1726 Carrick.

A laboratory technician at Royal Jubilee Hospital for two years, the young woman drowned in about 15 feet of water, 75 feet from shore while hundreds of people swam and boated at the lake.

She was pronounced dead at 11:30 a.m. after being taken to the hospital. A young boy was saved from drowning by other swimmers at Beaver Lake earlier this year.

Miss Rowbotham, the first drowning victim this year in Greater Victoria district, was reported in good health before the accident.

The jury was told she was one of a party of women taking an after-summer swim at the lake. She was last seen by her friends sitting on a raft.

"We have heard that same recommendation so often," observed Coroner E. C. Hart after the jury suggested that life guards be employed at all popular swimming resorts.

Westcoast Denied Rehearing on Gas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Power Commission Wednesday refused to order a rehearing on its decision authorizing Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp. to construct a $160,000,000 natural gas pipeline system to serve the Pacific Northwest.

Westcoast Transmission Co. and Trans-Northwest Gas, which had filed competing applications, and a number of intervenors had asked a stay of the June 18 order and a rehearing.

The commission said the request for rehearing did not present any new facts or allegations or any new principles of law that were not considered in reaching the decision.

Wednesday's action opens the way for a possible court test of the decision. Westcoast has said it planned to seek a court review if a commission rehearing were refused.

Tendermen

Favor Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—Salmon tendermen along the B.C. coast have voted 81.6 per cent in favor of striking at midnight Friday—a union official said Tuesday.

The tendermen, who transport the catch from the fishing fleet to the canneries, completed a strike vote July 22 to back up a demand for a $30 monthly wage increase. A convention board had previously rejected the demand.

Announcement of the result of the vote was delayed until Tuesday to allow ballots from a remote poll to be included.

Home Stevens, secretary of the United Fishermen's and Allied Workers' Union, said the vote was 288 in favor of a strike and 67 against. There were 90 spoiled ballots.

Robert Louis Stevenson, the author, studied law but never practiced it.

Fast-Stroking UBC Crew Upsets England in Eights

BY JOE TAYLOR
VEDDER CANAL (BUP)—Stroking an exhausting 40 to the minute, Canada's big eight from the University of British Columbia swept to an upset three-length victory over England Wednesday to give this country her only gold medal in British Empire Games rowing.

Bucking a stiff current that slowed times by well over one minute on the 2,000-metre Vedder Canal course, the UBC crew moved in front at 300 metres, and then refused to let down. They hit 42 strokes a minute in the last 150 metres and were still doing 40 when they skimmed past the finish in 6:59—11½ seconds in front of the Henley regatta finalists.

Australia and New Zealand split the remaining gold medals in the five-event program. Merwyn Wood, veteran Olympic and Diamond Sculls champion, stroked the Aussies to victory in the double sculls, then hopped into a larger boat to help his country to victory over New Zealand in the fours.

EASY WIN
Donald Rowlands of New Zealand sped to an easy five-length victory over Sidney Rand of England in the singles, with Bobby Williams of Canada a distant third. The New Zealand duo of Robert Parker and Reg Douglas came from behind to edge England in the pair oars.

The day's big upset, however, was provided by Canada in the eights, and coach Frank Read said he knew it was going to happen even before the start.

"We planned to take the lead at the 1,000-metre mark," he said, "but we did it sooner. That pace was really amazing. We had been doing only 36 in practice."

CREW WORRIED

The British Columbia crew was not so confident, however. "We felt pretty bad at the start," Ken Frummond of Burton, B.C., said. "But at the 1,000-metre mark we felt pretty sure of winning and at the 1,500 it was definite." Others in the crew were stroke Glen Smith of Grand Forks, Mike Harris of Abbotsford, T. Toynbee and Doug McDonald of Ganges, L. West of Vancouver, Herman Zlokovic of Prince George, Bob Wilson of Kamloops, Coxswain Ray Sierpina of Vancouver.

Both Read and singles winner Rowlands said the three-knot current down the canal added at least one minute to times in every event.

Top Track Stars Have Lazy Day

BY IAN GLENDAY
Colonist Staff Reporter

EMPIRE VILLAGE—Track and field competitors generally spent a lazy day at the village as they had an off day from competition.

Although the village is sealed off from the public, autograph seekers still manage to slip through and it's a common sight to watch an athlete sign his name to a piece of paper handed him by a star-eyed youngster.

Proving a hit with the women are the dark-skinned competitors from Africa and the Fiji Islands. The male contestants on the Fiji team are decked out in light blue blazers, gray skirts and sandals.

The village is a city within a city, probably the only place where you will find athletes from so many countries mingling together in a closely-knit spirit that seems symbolic of the Games.

For instance, Thelma Hopkins of Northern Ireland and Emmanuel Ifeajuna of Nigeria were sitting on the steps of the Northern Ireland hut talking about their high jump victories, which have proved one of the high points so far.

Ifeajuna, a shy, 19-year-old Lagos civil servant, would like to come to the United States to enter a university and continue his high jumping.

Although only five feet, six-and-a-half inches tall, Ifeajuna outjumped his height by more than 14 inches as he set a B.E.G. record with a leap of six feet, eight inches on Saturday.

Miss Hopkins, an 18-year-old Belfast lass who hopes to take up a medical career at Queen's University, will make her next stop the European Games in Switzerland shortly.

Baby Tossed Into Fire

SOUTHPORT, England (CP)—A 28-year-old mother, alleged in court here to have thrown her three-month-old baby daughter into the fire at her home, Wednesday was committed for trial on a charge of infanticide.

Police read a statement said to have been made by the woman, Mrs. Annie Downes, in which she explained that she lost her head when the baby, Susan, and her other child, aged three, got on her nerves.

"I put Susan on the fire," the statement said. "I pulled her out but she was dead."

One of many Empire Games records falls as Thelma Hopkins, 18-year-old high jumper from Northern Ireland, clears the bar at five feet, six inches.

One of Canada's three gold medals in Empire Games weight-lifting went to a nonchalant Gerry Gratton of Montreal, shown above setting new B.E.G. record.

Minister Halted By Nudist Group

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—About 20 nudists stopped a crusading evangelist at the gateway of Sunshine Gardens Wednesday and wouldn't let him go any farther unless he obeyed the rules.

To do that he had to take off his clothes. He refused. After considerable scuffling he landed on the ground.

Dr. Braxton B. Sawyer, a radio preacher from Fort Smith, Ark., said he wanted to take pictures to expose "the national threat of nudism."

He said he has been broadcasting since Monday over 27 stations in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Missouri. Sawyer said he is obtaining information with a movie camera and a tape recorder to help pass an anti-nudism bill in those four states.

Equipped with what he called an invitation to attend the annual convention of the American Sunbathing Association, at the Gardens, Sawyer approached the gate.

But he was told by Elmer J. Adams, proprietor, that he still must abide by the rules. Sawyer said his letter from Norval Packwood, the association's executive secretary, permitted him to stretch the rules.

Sawyer began to take pictures from the gateway. One nudist attempted to block the camera. Sawyer lunged at him. The nudist stepped aside and in the melee, Sawyer landed on the ground.

Earlier the duke, whose fondness for driving earned him a good deal of unexpected publicity and even some criticism during the Royal tour on Vancouver Island three years ago, took the wheel of a hardtop Cadillac on the trip yesterday morning from Vancouver to the RCME camp at Sardis.

He slowed down several times on the way to wave to groups of people stationed all along the way. At one point near Langley he slowed almost to a stop to wave to 100 small school children.

Driving the whole way the duke took no risks although he hit 65 miles an hour on a straight stretch out of Chilliwack.

An unknown driver of a wood truck probably wouldn't believe it if you told him but he held up the Duke of Edinburgh for several minutes on the Trans-Canada Highway. The Royal chauffeur tagged carefully behind the laden truck after he left Fry's Corner and didn't get a chance to pass for two miles.

CADETS INSPECTED
At Sardis the Duke was greeted by Lieut.-Col. D. W. Cunningham, RCME commander, and later inspected the joint services cadets on the camp parade square.

A private lunch at the camp followed. Despite reports that His Royal Highness does not eat sea food, he had cold B.C. salmon for lunch.

His before dinner cocktails were gin and tonic—two of them.

During his Vedder Canal visit which followed the Sardis camp inspection, the Duke wore a charcoal gray double-breasted suit, navy blue striped tie, he carried a soft brown hat characteristically behind his back.

Apparently interested in everything that was going on, the Duke looked around constantly. He watched the flashing RCAF jet fighters whistle their fast salute overhead, and several times made a studied inspection through his field glasses of the crowd on the opposite side of the canal, the floats launched, the Bailey bridge and the various hands which played during the events.

The Duke, in the first public remarks of his Canadian tour, praised Canada's army, navy and air force cadets at Sardis. Many of the cadets were from Vancouver Island.

"I just want to tell you how impressed I have been with this parade," he said. "I congratulate you."

"If you are an example of the cadet forces of Canada," the duke added, "then Canada is fortunate indeed. Well done and keep it up. When you go back to your own units you won't be boasting when you tell them this was a good parade."

The cadet group included contingents from the army, navy and air force cadets. The duke is commander of each of the three cadet branches. It was his only scheduled visit with them while in Canada.

Philip Sees England's Crew Beaten in Vedder Canal Test

BY RAY BAINES
Colonist Staff Reporter

VEDDER CANAL—It was hard to tell which was the greater attraction, the Duke of Edinburgh or the B.E.G. rowing, but 10,000 turned out yesterday to see both.

The duke was a very interested spectator throughout the events. He watched through field glasses at all the events and consulted his program constantly.

He saw Canada's fast-stroking UBC eight beat England's crew by 1½ lengths and clapped with the other onlookers when the Canadians crossed the finish line. He carefully studied the crew of the English eight, man by man, through his field glasses when his weary countrymen slumped exhausted at the end of the race.

CHEERED BY CROWD
His Royal Highness arrived earlier on the east side of the canal, crossed the army's Bailey bridge to the west side and walked along the top of the dike to the royal box amidst cheers from the crowd on both sides.

His arrival was marked by a rumpet fanfare from the RCAF bandmen and a fly past of RCAF Lancasters, Vampires and Mustangs which streaked over at exactly the right moment.

The duke's box was situated on the canal bank opposite the finish line. Below was the float where the victory ceremonies were held when winners were presented with medals.

When he walked along the dike on arrival at Vedder, the 33-year-old consort of Queen Elizabeth looked a little pale but he smiled and waved to the cheering crowds. Once seated in his box, the duke leaned forward as if eager for the races to begin.

PUT ON GLASSES
Said to be sensitive to bright light, the duke put on his dark glasses immediately he settled into the box between B.E.G. chairman Sir Arthur Porritt and Canada's External Affairs Minister Lester B. Pearson.

The sun never completely broke through the overcast during the afternoon but the waters of the canal gleamed brightly in the half-sunshine.

Showing keen interest in all the events he saw, the duke kept his glasses trained towards the starting point in each event and followed the progress of each race until its climax. Several times he had to stand to see over the heads of those in the royal party when the races were just starting.

He departed from the Vedder Canal before all the events were run off and about half the cheering crowd left immediately after.

His gleaming black Cadillac convertible was backed right up onto the top of the dike near the royal box so he would not have to walk back across the bridge to the east side of the canal.

CROWDS HELD BACK
RCMP officers had a difficult time holding back crowds who surged from two directions along the dike and down both sides of it to catch a glimpse of the handsome duke as he left for Vancouver.

Earlier the duke, whose fondness for driving earned him a good deal of unexpected publicity and even some criticism during the Royal tour on Vancouver Island three years ago, took the wheel of a hardtop Cadillac on the trip yesterday morning from Vancouver to the RCME camp at Sardis.

Russia Urges Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia, in a surprise move, called Wednesday for a new Big Four foreign ministers' meeting to consider Moscow's plan for joining Eastern and Western European countries in a giant security pact.

Senior U.S. officials promptly labeled the Soviet proposal as a last-minute manoeuvre aimed at blocking French approval of the six-country European Army project.

WARNED-OVER OFFER
Russia's new proposal, they said, represents a warmed-over version of previous offers, notably the one of July 24, already rejected as unacceptable by Britain, France and the United States.

Russian ambassadors in Washington, London and Paris handed notes to the Big Three foreign offices, formally proposing the new East-West meeting.

A Soviet spokesman said the note mentioned the possibility of discussing some aspects of the long-delayed plans for uniting Eastern and Western zones of Germany.

EXPERTS MEET
The Soviet move came on the eve of a London meeting of British, American and French experts who have been assigned to reply to the Russian proposal of July 24, calling for a conference on a security system which would embrace all Europe.

Moscow's strategy in formally proposing the Big Four conference was believed to be to encourage the French government to further delay a vote on French membership in the European Defense Community.

Great Blast Touched Off By Whisky
PEKIN, Ill. (AP)—Sixty-eight thousand gallons of whisky blew up Wednesday night in an atomic-like explosion at the American Distilling Co. plant, shooting flames skyward seen 75 miles away.

At least one man was killed, three persons were missing and believed dead and more than 40 persons were injured, many seriously.

Lawrence Nervear, 39, an employee at the big plant in this central Illinois city, was listed as dead.

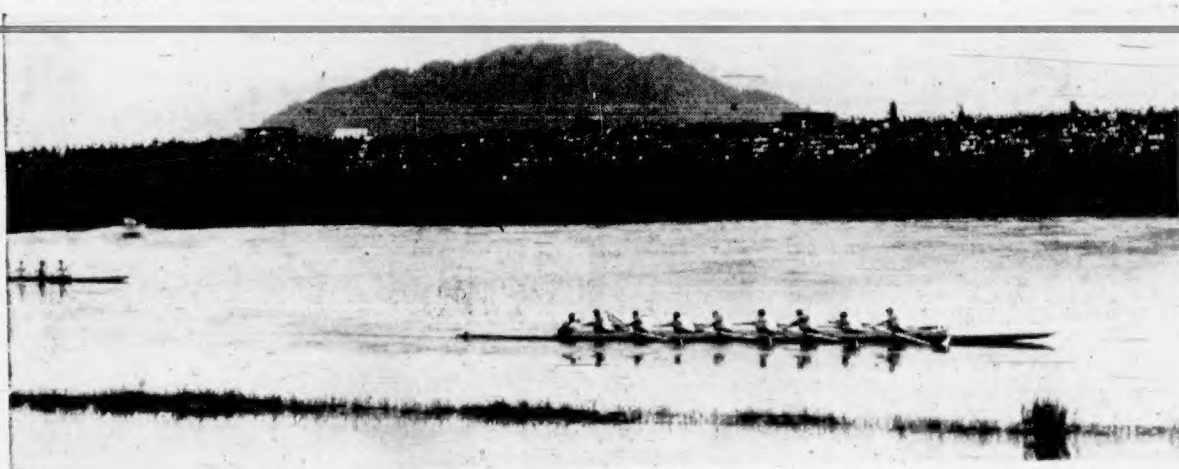

The Pekin Public Hospital, only hospital in this city of 23,000, was filled. Twenty-five of those injured in the blast and fire were taken there.

She set a Games record Tuesday when she cleared the bar at five feet, six inches and missed a world record when she failed in three tries to clear five feet, eight and a half inches.

Feature of today's track and field program will be the running of the two mile heats. It will be the first mile of England and world time that Dr. Roger Bannister will run together on the same track although they have been drawn in different heats.

Bannister is still suffering from a cold and only time will tell whether it will affect him in any way.

Terry Tobacco, the 18-year-old Cumberland High School student who is rated highly by Victoria track coach Bruce Humber, relaxed on his bed in hut No. 72 in the Canadian team quarters and insisted he didn't feel at all nervous on the eve of his first test in the British Empire Games.

"I'm not nervous now, the lanky grade 12 student said, but I can expect butterflies by tomorrow morning."

Tobacco, who seems to turn in a better time every time he runs the 440 yards will see his first action this afternoon in the third heat of the quarter-mile eliminations.

It will be Tobacco's first start in the major competition and he doesn't know quite what to expect in the way of competition. "I have heard that Kevan Gosper of Australia, rated one of the top prospects, has done it in 47.6 seconds and several others in 47.2."

Tobacco's best time in a recognized meet came in the B.E.G. trials when he ripped off a 48.6 quarter in finishing second to Joe Forman of Toronto. However, Tobacco has been unofficially clocked in 47.8 in a practice run.

The Vancouver Island youth has been training twice a day, concentrating on 300-yard sprints for speed and 660-yard runs to build up stamina.

For relaxation, it's been reading and shows—at least one a day. "We saw four in one day," Dave Stafford, his room-mate, interrupted at one point. Stafford of Langley Prairie, is entered in the broad jump and one of his staunchest supporters is his grandmother, who lives in Victoria.

Friday's flowers will go to patients in St. Joseph's Hospital and the Veterans' Hospital.

They are two of the nine institutions that benefit from the scheme. The others are Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria Nursing Home, the Aged Men's Home, Rest Haven Hospital, St. Mary's Priory, the Aged Women's Home and the Naval Hospital at Esquimalt.

Gardeners are reminded that donations of any size, large or small, will be appreciated, and will help to swell the number of flowers that will brighten wards and sickrooms.

One of many Empire Games records falls as Thelma Hopkins, 18-year-old high jumper from Northern Ireland, clears the bar at five feet, six inches.

RCMP officers had a difficult time holding back crowds who surged from two directions along the dike and down both sides of it to catch a glimpse of the handsome duke as he left for Vancouver.

Earlier the duke, whose fondness for driving earned him a good deal of unexpected publicity and even some criticism during the Royal tour on Vancouver Island three years ago, took the wheel of a hardtop Cadillac on the trip yesterday morning from Vancouver to the RCEME camp at Sardinia.

He slowed down several times on the way to wave to groups of people stationed all along the way. At one point near Langley he slowed

Russia Urges Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP).—Russia, in a surprise move, called Wednesday for a new Big Four foreign ministers' meeting to consider Moscow's plan for joining Eastern and Western European countries in a giant security pact.

Senior U.S. officials promptly labeled the Soviet proposal as a last-minute manoeuvre aimed at blocking French approval of the six-country European Army project.

WARMED-OVER OFFER

Russia's new proposal, they said, represents a warmed-over version of previous offers, notably the one of July 24, already rejected as unacceptable by Britain, France and the United States.

Russian ambassadors in Washington, London and Paris handed notes to the Big Three foreign offices, formally proposing the new East-West meeting.

A Soviet spokesman said the note mentioned the possibility of discussing some aspects of the long-deadlocked plans for uniting Eastern and Western zones of Germany.

EXPERTS MEET

The Soviet move came on the eve of a London meeting of British, American and French experts who have been assigned to reply to the Russian proposal of July 24, calling for a conference on a security system which would embrace all Europe.

Moscow's strategy in formally proposing the Big Four conferences was believed to be to encourage the French government to further delay a vote on French membership in the European Defense Community.

Tendermen Considering New Offer

VANCOUVER (CP).—A new offer made by fishing companies Wednesday is being considered by representatives of 600 tendermen who have voted for a strike that would tie up British Columbia's fishing fleet.

The offer was made at a meeting of representatives of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAW) and the Fisheries Association of B.C. At the same time, it was announced the union officials were discussing holding of a strike vote among shore workers.

The union is demanding a $30-a-month increase. Tendermen have voted 81.8 per cent to strike to back up their demands. The basic wage now is $1.20 an hour.

$17 Stolen from Home Before Eyes of Child

Two young men are sought by city police after they walked into a home yesterday, straling $17 while a seven-year-old girl looked on.

Police said the two men came to the front door of the home of Mrs. Jessent Dhillon, 580 John Street, while she was next door. They asked Mrs. Dhillon's daughter Paula, 7, if the parents were home.

When she said no, the men walked in and took the money from a purse in a bedroom, making a telephone call before they left.

One of the thieves wore blue jeans and a brown jacket and was taller than the other, who wore grey slacks and a wind-breaker.

Fairfield Gardeners Can Prove Friday Their Flowers Better Than Oak Bay's

Is it true that better flowers are grown in Fairfield than in Oak Bay?

The assertion was made yesterday by a Fairfield gardener who phoned offering blooms for the Colonist-sponsored "Share the Flowers" plan.

He had read that Oak Bay gardeners donated a record quantity of flowers Tuesday for distribution to institutions and hospitals in the district.

The ardent gardener claims Fairfield produces better blooms and claims the fact will be obvious when collections are made in the district Friday.

So Fairfield gardeners who wish to help him substantiate his theory, and who have some spare flowers, should phone the Colonist at 3-4111 as early as possible today, to arrange for collections.

Volunteer drivers will call at their homes between 10 a.m. and noon, Friday, and bring the blooms to the Colonist building on Douglas Street, where they will be arranged into bouquets.

Friday's flowers will go to patients in St. Joseph's Hospital and the Veterans' Hospital. They are two of the nine institutions that benefit from the scheme. The others are Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria Nursing Home, the Aged Men's Home, Rest Haven Hospital, St. Mary's Priory, the Aged Women's Home and the Naval Hospital at Esquimalt.

Gardeners are reminded that donations of any size, large or small, will be appreciated, and will help to swell the number of flowers that will brighten wards and sickrooms.

Great Blast Touched Off By Whisky

PEKIN, Ill. (AP).—Sixty-eight thousand gallons of whisky blew up Wednesday night in an atomic-like explosion at the American Distilling Co. plant, shooting flames skyward seen 75 miles away.

At least one man was killed, three persons were missing and believed dead and more than 40 persons were injured, many seriously. Lawrence Nervear, 39, an employee at the big plant in this central Illinois city, was listed as dead.

The Pekin Public Hospital, only hospital in this city of 23,000, was filled. Twenty-five of those injured in the blast and fire were taken there.

Sidney Officials Miffed; Not Invited To Meet Duke

The Sidney village commission feels the village was slighted when the Duke of Edinburgh arrived at the Patricia Bay airport Sunday for his brief visit to this area. No representative was invited to meet the duke, and the commission has decided to write to Government House, deploring the lack of an invitation.

Harold Fox, commission chairman, said he communicated with Government House before the duke's arrival and was informed invitations were extended only to mayors and Reeves.

Mr. Fox said, "It's not a personal matter. I'm objecting on behalf of the village."
